the world a two-edged sword, duplicity it's ugly norm

in our dual existence, I see a transient truth

what matters to one is self; so I make my own reality

my vision of a future – more honest, yet another lie

The spring summer 2014 collection is a result of dwelling on two characteristics of the modern human – duplicity and duality. Transposing these traits onto clothes that lie to the onlooker or serve a dual purpose.

Double Waistband lend illusionary low-waists; Double Lapels add contrast; Detachable Sleeves and hoods add function. Some clothes are simultaneously two items of clothing – coat-back jumpsuit, skirt-back trouser, trail-dress jumpsuit. These details which express duplicity and duality make the clothes interesting while staying true to DRVV's ideals.

Fabrics too were chosen to highlight a sense of duality – double-sided crepe-georgette is used widely in the collection and is a prime example of the attention paid to every detail to keep the collection true to the inspiration.

The result is a line of unique pieces, each of which a strong individual with the courage of their convictions would love to own and wear.
